

We are The Make Shed

Handmade in England.

Simple cuts,
small quantities.

We design and craft the garments in our studio/shed, producing clothing in small batches to reduce waste.

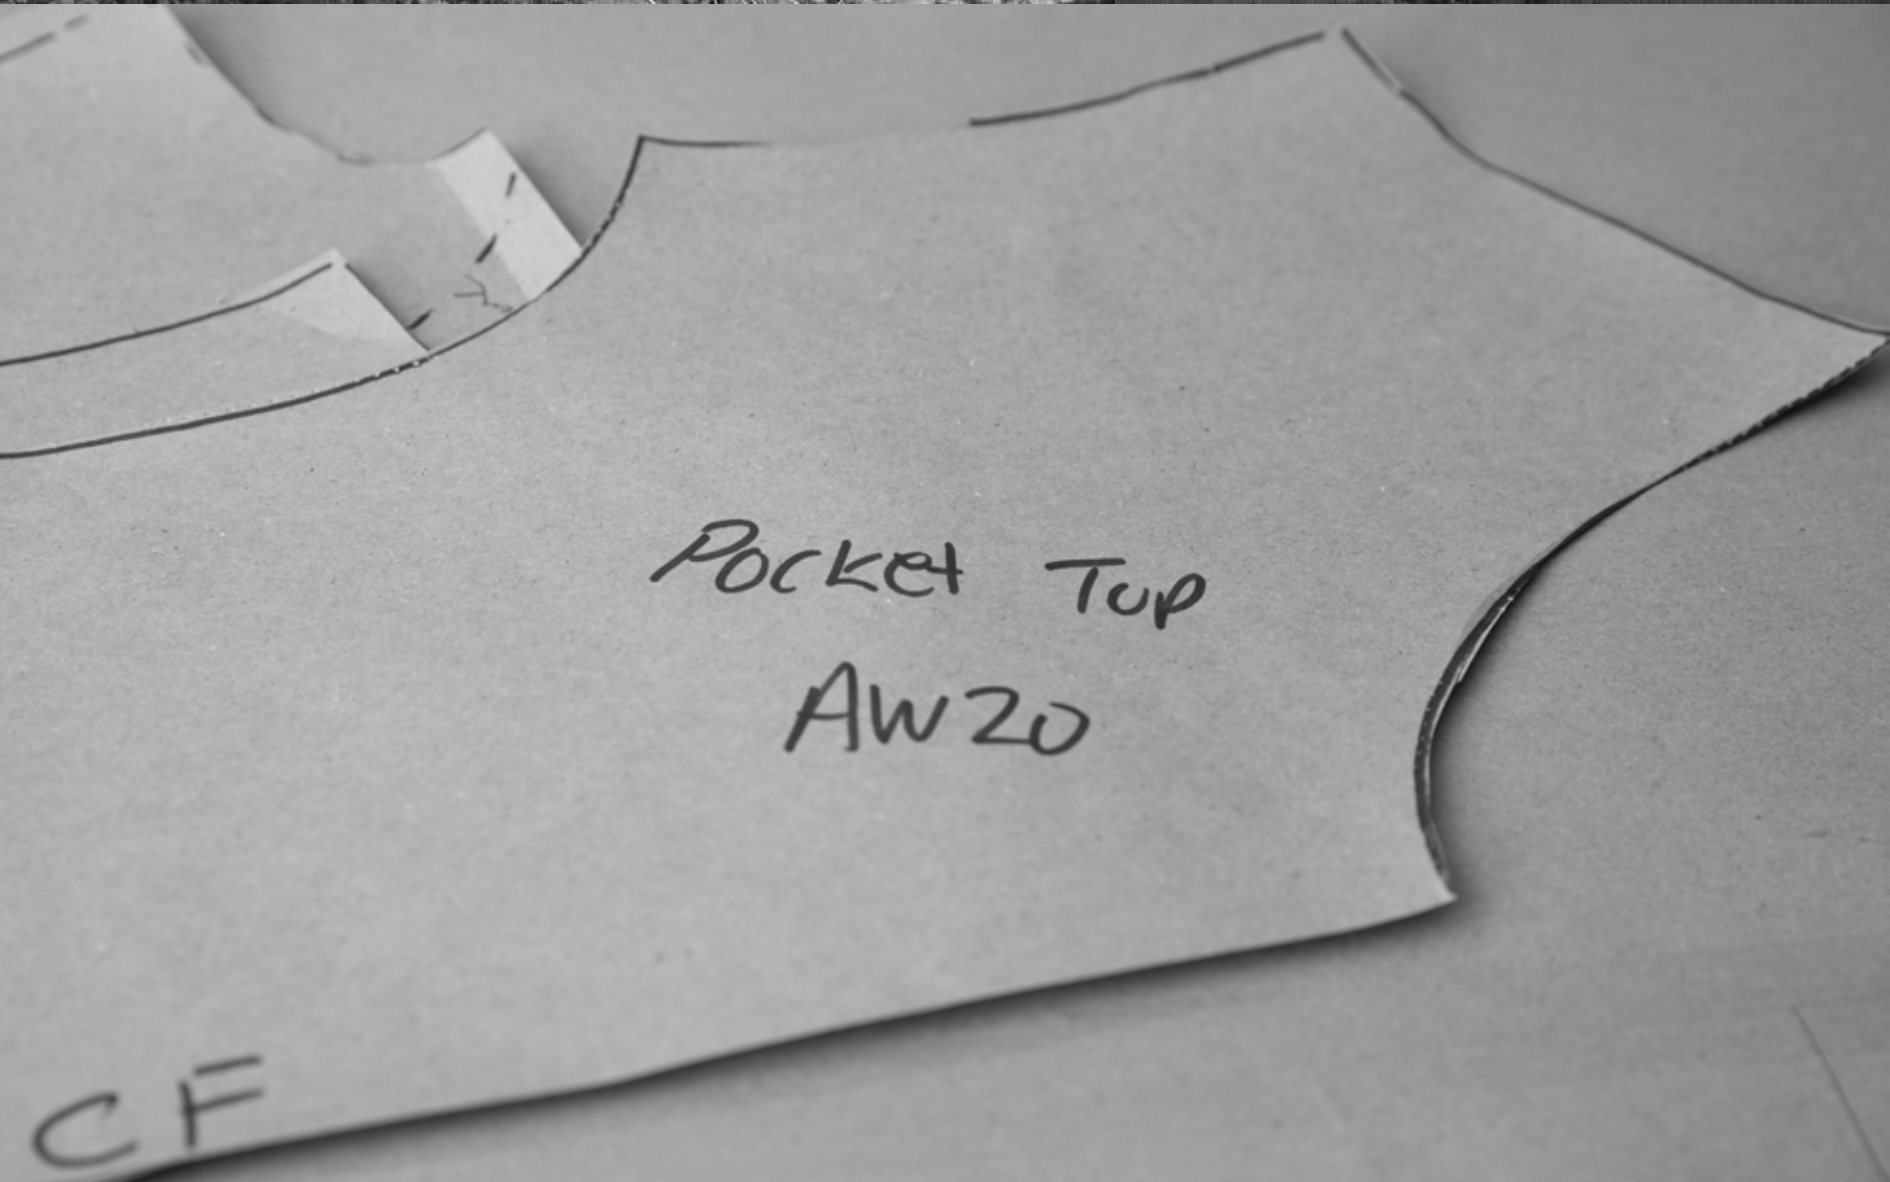

This in turn means you buy less, but buy better. You collect a range of clothing that lasts longer and brings more enjoyment.

We care about how we create our clothing, using natural products such as wools and linens that have provenance.

Creating designs that are timeless, garments that let you add to your existing wardrobe.

Handmade Fabric Collection

Every piece in this collection is made entirely by hand, from the first cut to the final finish, allowing for a close and considered connection to each stage of its creation. At the heart of our work is a deep respect for craft and the time it demands. Each garment reflects years of learned skill — an understanding that can only be developed through experience, patience, and dedication.

The Make
Shed

The connection between maker and garment is integral to every piece. Guided by practiced hands and an intuitive knowledge of construction, each design is carefully shaped and brought to life with precision and care.

This process cannot be rushed; it is built over time and carried into every stitch and seam. The result is clothing that feels personal, deliberate, and enduring — defined by the human touch behind it.

Handmade Knitwear

Every piece in this collection is designed and crafted entirely in-house, allowing us to stay closely connected to each stage of the process. At the heart of our work is a commitment to both craft and community. We use ethically sourced yarns, carefully selected for their quality, longevity, and respect for people and planet.

Our garments are brought to life by a collective of skilled local knitters, whose years of experience and deep understanding of their craft are woven into every stitch.

Each piece is made by hand with patience and care, resulting in knitwear that feels considered, personal, and enduring — shaped as much by human touch as by design.
